The High Wage Jobs Puzzle

Finding Montana's
Place in the New
Geography of Jobs

March 15, 2017

Sleep Inn & Suites

1006 S. Haynes Ave - Miles City

8:00am-1:00pm (lunch included)

In the past, natural resources drove local economic prosperity. Economies thrived where soil was fertile, timber and minerals were abundant, and where transportation by water was easy (e.g., at the confluence of rivers or at natural ports). Today, knowledge matters more. Natural resources and access to markets still matter, but many industries and occupations are increasingly concentrated in a few places where skilled, creative workers are abundant. This program examines what these changes might mean for Montana's economy. Can Montana -- particularly its entrepreneurs -- figure out how to develop a more robust "knowledge" economy -- an economy that allows more of Montana's young, creative, and ambitious people to remain in Montana?

Agenda

- The High Wage Job Puzzle: Finding Montana's Place in the New Geography of Jobs
- U.S. and Montana Outlooks
- Local Outlooks
- Industry Outlooks
 - Agriculture, Energy, Health Care, Housing & Real Estate,
 - Manufacturing, Tourism, Wood Products
- Reaction and Discussion Panel with Local Experts

Cigarette butts are the most commonly discarded piece of waste worldwide. It is estimated that 1.69 BILLION pounds of butts wind up as toxic trash each year, creating an enormous environmental, health, and economic burden.

Contrary to popular belief, cigarette butts are NOT biodegradable! Cigarette butt waste is a huge environmental issue, with a global impact -- it is both unsightly and unhealthy.
